File Until 1948

In the absence of fresh communications, it must be assumed the glamor boys and girls are still deadlocked on the issue of taking to the radio every four years to influence the outcome of national elections.

One thought keeps recurring to us voters who are not glamor boys and girls. It is this: That they have as much right as anybody else to play politics on a national hookup, but no more. That is, they have no more right than any of the rest of us.

Therefore, the way to handle this situation when the next national election happens is to demand a chance to be on a national hookup the same as the glamor boys and girls, who don't know what they are talking about either, and if the chance is denied—as it will be, because we are neither talented nor photogenic—that will be our cue to refuse to listen to the radio until the glamor boys and girls have quit playing politics and started to do what we admire them for being able to do.

It's a simple plan and it would stop glamorized politics so fast, they'd have to wake up the standby organist to finish the programs. It's hard to understand now why it didn't occur to everybody who felt that way about it last November.

No Popularity Contest

The overseas portion of OWI, now being transformed from an agency to supply war information into a kind of press agent to tell Europeans what they need to know about the United States, has a ticklish job to perform.

The program calls for a vast amount of printed literature, plus motion pictures and radio programs. The main idea is to give liberated Europeans all the factual information needed to steer them toward a more sympathetic understanding of the United States.

This is, no doubt, a legitimate enterprise, but the apparent necessity for it is connected with a great American disillusionment. In this country we have wanted to believe that to know us was to love us—that all our good intentions were self-evident—that gratitude for American generosity was automatic.

During and after World War I, it didn't work that way. It hasn't worked that way during World War II. International collaboration is not a popularity contest; it is more often than not an unpopularity contest. American naïveté is fading fast. The OWI is deserving of good luck in its efforts to make the United States as admirable as we think it should be. It will need it.

Accelerating Disintegration

The Allies are coming visibly closer to cashing in on their demand for Germany's unconditional surrender every minute. Their advances into central Germany against the seemingly helpless remnants of Germany's army are demoralizing the country with a display of overwhelming military power. There will be few Germans left after this war who will not know what it feels like to be defeated and forced to yield to the demands of a conquering army.

Germany's state has been called accelerating disintegration, a mouth-filling but highly descriptive phrase. It is not merely thousands and tens of thousands of men and hundreds of square miles that are being lost to the Allies. Each new loss sets in motion new circumstances of defeat that ultimately must crush the country. There apparently have been no peace negotiations yet; there may never be any. The sustained and awkward negotiations that lasted almost two years before the end of World War I are fortunately absent. This time, it is not the aim of the Allies to drive a wedge between the Hitler regime and the German people, with a view to destroying the government and saving the people. What has happened since 1918 justifies a sounder assumption in 1945: that the German people and the governments they support are one and the same thing.

This does not mean every German is guilty of the crimes of Hitlerism. It means that Germans must bear collective responsibility for a dictatorship that boasted of its mandate from the people when it came to power. The country that voted for Hitler in proportions of 99 to 1 in 1933 and 1934 is in no position to ask for mercy in 1945.

Floodlights For Liberty

Lighting engineers have found a way, reports a publicity release from one of the great electrical companies, to illuminate the State of Liberty in radiance equivalent to 2,500 times full moonlight. When Germany surrenders, the symbol of American freedom will be plainly visible for miles.

The United States needs to take its cue from the lighting engineers and make American freedom plainly visible for thousands of miles—not the symbol that stands in New York harbor, but the real thing. It is time to quit hiding freedom's light under a bushel. For 150 years, the oppressed people of the earth have been depending on it as sailors depend on the gleam from a lighthouse tower; America must not disappoint them.

Here at home, in this world-famed land of freedom, all of us who have been its beneficiaries need to make a fresh appraisal of our ideological stock in trade. There have been too many Americans half-apologetic for having what their counterparts in other parts of the world dream of obtaining. Freedom has been mankind's best hope throughout recorded history. American freedom, since the founding of this nation, has been a world standard. The herds of immigrants who populated an undeveloped continent and transformed it from a wilderness into the world's most productive nation on earth were drawn irresistibly by the lure of liberty.

America is still the international magnet, though we sometimes forget it in the confusion of war and the rising babel of planning for arrangements to follow the victory American industry and manpower have made attainable. All over the earth, wherever human beings are freshly aware of America through contact with our men, their ideas and the products they bring with them, interest in the American legend of freedom is being rekindled.

If this nation now is embarking on a course of reality in its international relations, this fact needs to be understood. It is one of the great realities; it is the ultimate foundation of whatever prestige and influence for good the United States may possess and exert in the years ahead. There must be no slighting of the source of our strength—no compromise with our principles. We must not let ourselves become so distracted by what someone else may want us to learn that we forget what we know. Today, more than ever before, the eyes of the world are turned toward the last best hope of all mankind—the land where Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness are unalienable rights, secured by government deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed.

Paper Shortage

The reading public will be fascinated to know that volume three of "Federal Power Commission Reports" has come off the government presses in Washington. It presents the Commission's opinions and decisions from Jan. 1, 1942, to Sept. 30, 1943. It is a stout volume of 1180 pages.

Be sure to save every scrap of salvageable waste paper. Maybe some of it will find its way into "Federal Power Commission Reports, Vol. IV."

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, April 4.

WHILE all the affairs, business and private, may move along with unusual liveliness and at high tempo, with excitement, change, perhaps travel, yet there are tenacious obstacles, setbacks, impediments, with probable opposition or delays from superiors, old institutions or elderly family relations. Placate rather than outsmart these, as finesse and compromise will be more effective. Use charm, personality, good nature rather than force or duplicity, since social, affectional or romantic issues are paramount. Quick moves may prove lucrative and victorious over opposition.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an exceptionally lively and exciting year, in which all interests are keyed to high tension, even though there are stubborn obstacles, delays and impediments, possibly coming from elders, superiors or employers. Definite and swift moves, but with cleverness, tact and diplomacy may prove more effective than open rebellion, strife and trickery.

Use tact, personality and good nature, as these are well-stimulated for success and compromise. Travel, change or romantic adventure are indicated with youthful ideas and aims to the fore.

A child born on this day will be splendidly endowed with artistic, intellectual and social qualities which may assure it a happy, productive and pleasant life, against obstacles.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Infectious Hepatitis, Treatment By Injection

BY HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the most important diseases of the present war is a condition known as infectious hepatitis, or inflammation of the liver. Not only has it affected thousands of soldiers but also large groups of the civilian population.

Just exactly what causes this disease is not known, but it is thought by many to be due to a virus, that is, an organism so small it can pass through the openings in a porcelain filter.

The symptoms of infectious hepatitis consist of fever, loss of appetite, prostration and usually the development of jaundice or a greenish-yellow discoloration of the skin and tissues. Widespread epidemics of the disease have been reported.

Thus, Doctor Joseph Stokes, Jr., of Philadelphia and his co-worker, Capt. John R. Neefe of the Medical Corps of the United States Army, studied an epidemic which occurred in a summer camp for boys and girls.

Because of the fact that measles, which is also due to a virus can be prevented by the injection of convalescent serum, which is blood serum taken from a person who has recently recovered from the disease, as well as by a newer product called gamma globulin, a protein derived from blood plasma, these physicians attempted to prevent the development of hepatitis by giving injections of gamma globulin to exposed persons in the camp.

Three hundred and thirty-one of the group had not developed the condition when the study started. Fifty-three of them were given the gamma globulin by injection under the skin. The remainder were used as controls. Thirteen per cent of those who were given the injections developed the disease.

Reaction Shown

Of the 53 persons who got the gamma globulin, not one developed jaundice of the skin. Three developed some discoloration of the lining membrane over the eyeball, but this lasted only four to seven days, as compared with jaundice which lasted for 14 days in those who were not protected. The hepatitis developed in those receiving the injections within 10 days after the treatment was given. No further cases occurred after that time.

However, in those who did not receive the protective inoculation cases continued to appear for some 32 days.

From this study, it would appear fairly certain that the injections of gamma globulin served to aid in the prevention of hepatitis or liver inflammation, much as the injections do in preventing the measles. Furthermore, it is suggested that even after hepatitis develops the injections of globulin may serve to make the disease milder and shorten its course.

Should epidemics of infectious hepatitis develop, it would appear that injection with the gamma globulin of those exposed would be a good procedure. This substance is available, since much of it has been prepared from blood which has been donated by persons throughout the country.

Tomorrow, Dr. Bundesen will discuss "Foot Disorders in Children."

Child Mortality Rate In Egypt Is Fifty Per Cent

CAIRO — Mortality rate among children under five years old in Egypt has reached one child dying in every two born, according to the Infant and Maternity Welfare Department report to the Ministry of Public Health.

To reduce the rate, second highest in the world, health authorities suggested more infant and maternity welfare centers and a rise in cultural and economic standards of the people.

Authorities also advocate a tax on bachelors and a family allowance to encourage marriage.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, April 4.

WHILE all the affairs, business and private, may move along with unusual liveliness and at high tempo, with excitement, change, perhaps travel, yet there are tenacious obstacles, setbacks, impediments, with probable opposition or delays from superiors, old institutions or elderly family relations. Placate rather than outsmart these, as finesse and compromise will be more effective. Use charm, personality, good nature rather than force or duplicity, since social, affectional or romantic issues are paramount. Quick moves may prove lucrative and victorious over opposition.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an exceptionally lively and exciting year, in which all interests are keyed to high tension, even though there are stubborn obstacles, delays and impediments, possibly coming from elders, superiors or employers. Definite and swift moves, but with cleverness, tact and diplomacy may prove more effective than open rebellion, strife and trickery.

Use tact, personality and good nature, as these are well-stimulated for success and compromise. Travel, change or romantic adventure are indicated with youthful ideas and aims to the fore.

A child born on this day will be splendidly endowed with artistic, intellectual and social qualities which may assure it a happy, productive and pleasant life, against obstacles.

Infectious Hepatitis, Treatment By Injection

BY HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the most important diseases of the present war is a condition known as infectious hepatitis, or inflammation of the liver. Not only has it affected thousands of soldiers but also large groups of the civilian population.

Just exactly what causes this disease is not known, but it is thought by many to be due to a virus, that is, an organism so small it can pass through the openings in a porcelain filter.

The symptoms of infectious hepatitis consist of fever, loss of appetite, prostration and usually the development of jaundice or a greenish-yellow discoloration of the skin and tissues. Widespread epidemics of the disease have been reported.

Thus, Doctor Joseph Stokes, Jr., of Philadelphia and his co-workers, Capt. John R. Neefe of the Medical Corps of the United States Army, studied an epidemic which occurred in a summer camp for boys and girls.

Because of the fact that measles, which is also due to a virus can be prevented by the injection of convalescent serum, which is blood serum taken from a person who has recently recovered from the disease, as well as by a newer product called gamma globulin, a protein derived from blood plasma, these physicians attempted to prevent the development of hepatitis by giving injections of gamma globulin to exposed persons in the camp.

Three hundred and thirty-one of the group had not developed the condition when the study started. Fifty-three of them were given the gamma globulin by injection under the skin. The remainder were used as controls. Thirteen per cent of those who were given the injections developed the disease.

Reaction Shown Of the 53 persons who got the gamma globulin, not one developed jaundice of the skin. Three developed some discoloration of the lining membrane over the eyeball, but this lasted only four to seven days, as compared with jaundice which lasted for 14 days in those who were not protected. The hepatitis developed in those receiving the injections within 10 days after the treatment was given. No further cases occurred after that time.

However, in those who did not receive the protective inoculation

cases continued to appear for some 32 days.

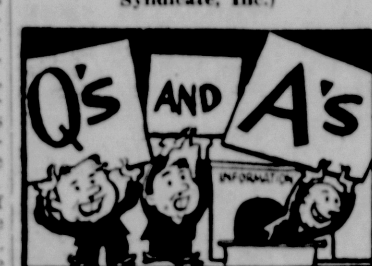

From this study, it would appear fairly certain that the injections of gamma globulin served to aid in the prevention of hepatitis or liver inflammation, much as the injections do in preventing the measles. Furthermore, it is suggested that even after hepatitis develops the injections of globulin may serve to make the disease milder and shorten its course.

Should epidemics of infectious hepatitis develop, it would appear that injection with the gamma globulin of those exposed would be a good procedure. This substance is available, since much of it has been prepared from blood which has been donated by persons throughout the country.

Tomorrow, Dr. Bundesen will discuss "Foot Disorders in Children."

Child Mortality Rate In Egypt Is Fifty Per Cent

CAIRO — Mortality rate among children under five years old in Egypt has reached one child dying in every two born, according to the Infant and Maternity Welfare Department report to the Ministry of Public Health.

To reduce the rate, second highest in the world, health authorities suggested more infant and maternity welfare centers and a rise in cultural and economic standards of the people.

Authorities also advocate a tax on bachelors and a family allowance to encourage marriage.

DDT is the most potent weapon against insects discovered so far.

There was the ache of tragedy in the house in Louisburg Square. All the servants had gone but Summs and he hung on with dogged loyalty. There was little for him to do. I think he hated to leave the curious fustiness of the old house. Pat was in bed of nervous collapse and I heard the distant rustling of the nurse's uniform as she glided to and from the kitchen with her nourishment trays.

Charley arrived, and as if by magic consent, we gravitated to study. On a desk that looked like a quill pen and beside it in the bronze inkwell an ordinary pen-holder such as one could purchase in the five and ten-cent store. Beside the pen lay a dark volume with a leather cover and on the cover the simple gold letters: JOURNAL.

Feeling like a ghoul I opened the volume. I turned to the last notation: Execrable weather and me off to The Ledges. The cumulative consequences of one ill-considered act are staggering. Not the least of which is the necessity of exposing my vulnerable body and spirit to the rigors of Sandy Point in November.

Something or nothing? There was no telling. What ill-considered act? Whose? Then there was the notation on April 30: Today concluded satisfactory arrangements with W. Typical Hudson embroidery but a little less clear.

This cryptic entry was anything but clear. W. might be Woolf, but the embroidery was I could not fathom. But the next notation stopped me. It concerned the death of his wife and after it was a lapse of a month. It simply said: Beatrice gone. What shall I do? God give me strength.

I closed the journal. "I'm no detective," I said to Charley. "And I've no stomach for this."

We went into the library and sat through the gray hours of the morning, smoking and waiting for someone to put an end to our uselessness.

It was the post-man who started it all rolling again. Merely by dropping the mail through the slot and ringing the bell. The letter caught my eye at once. A long white envelope and written across the face in clear, bold script was Phineas Hudson's name with the appendage Esquire added as a kind of ironic filigree. And in the lower left hand corner were two words that the writer had written large and underlined for emphasis: Personal—Urgent. I felt a tingling at the roots of my hair. I carried the letter into the study, its thickness teasing my palm, and passed it to Charley.

"You're the loyal half of this firm," I said. "What about it?" Charley looked at me silently then stared up at me. Excitement leaked into his eyes, betraying the dead calm of his voice.

"That's Phineas Hudson's signature," he said. "What about it?" And his finger was resting on the address on the envelope.

"But it can't be," I said. He's dead." Charley slit open the long envelope. An insurance policy and a note. Nothing more. Charley glanced at the note, read a line or two, then stopped.

"This seems to be personal," he said. "It's for Pat." "Pat's asleep," I said. "You'd better read it all."

The letter was signed by Phineas Hudson—a strangely moving message to his daughter which he had addressed to himself for reasons that came clear in the note.

"Dear Pat," So many times I've heard of people who have forgotten to say goodbye, and I've seen the heartache that this neglect has caused. The occasion seems to have arrived for me to take my leave of you. If I am wrong, I can intercept this letter myself and avoid feeling incredibly foolish and sentimental. If I am right—God bless you, child, and from the bottom of my heart I wish you all the happiness that the world can hold for its own.

Don't worry about me. If I greatly cared to live, I should not be attempting what I have in mind. The insurance policy is one I had forgotten. It's small enough to help only a little, but not big enough to hurt.

Remember, Pat, no false gods. And no stickiness about your 'poor father' who goes to a better world and, thanks to a little tardy vision, knows it.

With all my love, Father."

"And he could have told us so much," said Charley as he folded the note.

"It was against his policy," I said. "What you're ignorant of, you needn't lie about. Let me see that note a moment."

One sentence interested me: "If I greatly cared to live, I should not be attempting what I have in mind."

I read it aloud. "What do you suppose he meant by that, Charley?"

Charley shook his head. "If I didn't know he was murdered, I should say suicide."

"I wonder if he really had the diamonds?"

"If he did," Charley answered darkly, "I hope he took them with him."

But he hadn't. And what we had lived dangerously in the fringes of was now dumped squarely into our laps. I have tried since, desperately but unsuccessfully, to erase the memory of those next 48 hours. They scarcely come under the head of pleasant reminiscences.

BAUKNECHT HEADS BAR ASSOCIATION

LISBON, April 3.—John E. Bauknecht, East Palestine attorney and former county prosecutor, was chosen to head the Columbiana Bar association at the annual reorganization meeting in court room No. 2 Monday afternoon.

Bauknecht succeeds Harry Brokaw of East Liverpool as president. Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Judge Frank E. Grosshans of the East Liverpool Municipal court; secretary-treasurer, Donald Shay, East Liverpool. This is Shay's second term.

The late Charles C. Connell of Lisbon, former state senator from this district, was honored when the bar association accepted his picture for the county law library. Connell had served for 48 years as secretary-treasurer of the association until his death last year.

A dinner meeting at the American Legion home preceded the business session. The meeting featured a report by William H. Vordrey, Jr., of East Liverpool, who in the past two years has built the county law library into one of the finest in the district while serving as chairman of the law library committee. Funds for this are derived from liquor fines collected in the county. The statutes provide that the county commissioners shall provide the place which they have done on the third floor of the court house.

One new member, Fred H. Booth of East Liverpool, engineer with Pittsburgh Crucible Steel in Midland, Pa., who studied law at Youngstown college, night law school, and was admitted to the practice last January, was admitted to the organization.

Hot-Shot Insecticide Makes, Preserves History

AMHERST, Mass.—DDT, the hot-shot insecticide, is not only making history—it's preserving it.

Entomologists at Massachusetts State College got a frantic call that moths were raising you-know-what in the upholstery of a "deluxe model" colored stagecoach owned by the Amherst Historical society. The scientists produced a gallon of DDT—and the insects were blizzed in short order.

NEW SMOKELESS POWDER PROCESS ELIMINATES COAL

(By International News Service) EAST ALTON, Ill.—Proving that "common sense" can be wrong, East Alton scientists have found a way to relieve the coal shortage and save large tonnages every month.

Common belief has it that hot water is best for washing, even laundering smokeless powder. When nitrocellulose, the base of smokeless powder, was first discovered, early English powder makers, afraid hot water would explode it, washed it in sacks suspended in cold mountain brooks to remove acid impurities.

It was considered daring when English powder makers boiled nitrocellulose in hot water. When even hot water failed to remove the impurities, Western Cartridge company developed a chemical method which purified nitrocellulose without washing.

Until recently, hot water—heated by great quantities of coal—was used in one of the final steps of this process to remove the glue-like colloid substance that surrounds the droplets of nitrocellulose and keeps them separated until they harden into spherical powder grains.

In their effort to conserve vital materials in ball powder production, Western experts made a scientific test of the "common sense" belief that hot water is better than cold water for washing. Their tests proved common sense was wrong. Putting their laboratory tests into full scale operation they were able to make many precious tons of coal available for other vital war and civilian needs.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

TWELFTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS

Three kings look over the shoulder of General Omar Nelson Bradley, who has come a long way from a Central Missouri railroad center to direct the forward thrusting American armies in the battle of Germany, as he sits in his present headquarters.

They are plaster busts of the three last monarchs of Belgium, whose tiny but aggressively progressive country was liberated by troops fighting under this tall army group commander.

At 52 years of age, Bradley is in the curious position of being perhaps America's most proven field general—yet he is relegated to a job that ordinarily ties him to a desk far from the battlefield where he would prefer to be.

In Tunisia and in Sicily, as a group commander, Bradley demonstrated tactical talents not excelled by any subsequent combat leader. None who came after him has exceeded his masterful record—the "last roundup" in northern Tunisia, the taking of Hill 609, the cracking of the German line at Troina in Sicily, the long, swift, hard march to Messina and the Normandy conquest.

Diplomatic "Country Doctor" But in the long term strategy of international war there are jobs even more important than those of corps or army commanders—and there are few men who have the talent to fill them. Fine group and overall commanders like Bradley and Montgomery are few indeed. They must plan strategic objectives weeks and months ahead and get able but temperamental subordinates to pull together.

Bradley, who looks and acts like a kindly country doctor, is stern enough to drive and direct troops to victory in the white heat and agony of battle and he is diplomatic enough to channel the high ability of high-strung army commanders to a common purpose and mutual goal. He is the nearest thing to Abraham Lincoln uniform the American army has produced.

He has goodness, good will, tact and shining simplicity. With that farm boy simplicity goes shrewdness and judgment.

Bradley is the least changed man by success I have ever met. He leads the same quiet, semi-Spartan existence he did when he first went into the field in Tunisia.

Lavish Quarters Temporarily his surroundings border on the magnificent. His home-for-the-moment is a splendid gold room in a palace with electric wall lights cupped in decorative cupid's hands and soft-rugged floors, but he retains the same "old shoe" personality ingrained in him since birth.

I called on the general the night the announcement was made that his Third Army under Gen. Patton had stormed across the Rhine, joining Hodges' First Army which earlier had forced this great river barrier by seizure of the Remagen bridge.

Bradley was jubilant over Patton's bold stroke and praised him highly. He stayed up until almost midnight that night talking over old times and discussing the windup campaign in Germany.

His mess sergeant had obtained some fresh oysters for the general's chow to celebrate the crossing of the Rhine by a second Twelfth Army group and everybody enjoyed them but Bradley, who passed them by.

"The general is allergic to shellfish," one of his aides explained.

"Why am I Still Waiting, WHEN MY NEIGHBOR JUST GOT A TELEPHONE?"

WE KNOW just how you felt when the new neighbor across the street got a telephone, after you had been waiting patiently for many months for home telephone service.

You can't be blamed for feeling put out, so we want you to know why your neighbor might have obtained telephone service. It might have been:

1. Your neighbor may have a key position with a vital war industry—or with some essential civilian activity affecting public welfare, health or safety—which requires that he be available at all hours. This would give him precedence over other applicants.
2. He may have applied for service many months before he actually moved, and before your application was made.
3. He may have moved into your neighborhood from a home in the same community, or one nearby, where he had telephone service. Transfers of the service of present subscribers are made within the same general area whenever possible.

In every instance we shall be glad to check for you just why your neighbor got service ahead of you.

Telephone people are following the procedures which were set up by the War Production Board, when shortages in telephone facilities began to appear in 1942 and are installing service in its proper turn under the fair and necessary rules.

We know what telephone service means to every home and regret exceedingly the inconvenience caused to those on our waiting lists. It also grieves us that we can't tell you how soon you will be served. We can assure you that your order will not be forgotten and will be filled in its proper turn, even though that might be some time after final victory.

I think he hated to leave the curious fustiness of the old house. Pat was in bed of nervous collapse, and I heard the discreet rustling of the nurse's uniform as she glided to and from the kitchen with her nourishment trays.

Charley arrived, and as if by magic, the house seemed to breathe again. He came with a quill pen and beside him in the bronze inkwell an ordinary red pen-holder such as one could purchase in the five and ten-cent store. Beside the pens lay a thick volume with a leather cover and on the cover the simple gold letters: JOURNAL.

Feeling like a ghoul I opened the volume. I turned to the last notation: Exorable weather and me off to The Ledges. The cumulative consequences of one ill-considered act are staggering. Not the least of which is the necessity of exposing my vulnerable body and spirit to the rigors of Sandy Point in November.

Something or nothing? There was no telling. What ill-considered act? Whose? Then there was the notation on April 30: Today concluded satisfactory arrangements with W. Typical Hudson embroidery, but a little less clear.

This cryptic entry was anything but clear. W. might be Woolf, but what the embroidery was I could not fathom. But the next notation stopped me. It concerned the death of his wife and after it was a lapse of a month. It simply said: Beatrice gone. What shall I do? God give me strength.

I closed the journal.

"I'm no detective," I said to Charley, "and I've no stomach for this."

We went into the library and at through the gray hours of the morning, smoking and waiting for someone to put an end to our uselessness.

It was the post-man who started it all rolling again. Merely by dropping the mail through the slot and ringing the bell. The letter caught my eye at once. A long white envelope and written on the face in clear, bold script was Phineas Hudson's name with the appendage Esquire added as a kind of ironic filipp. And in the lower left hand corner were two words that the writer had written large and underlined for emphasis: Personal—Urgent. I felt a tingling at the roots of my hair. I carried the letter into the study, its thickness tensing my palm, and passed it to Charley.

"You're the legal half of this firm," I said. "What about it?"

Charley looked at me silently, then stared up at me. Excitement leaked into his eyes, betraying the dead calm of his voice.

"That's Phineas Hudson's signature," he said.

And his finger was resting on the address on the envelope.

"But it can't be," I said. He's dead."

Charley slit open the long envelope. An insurance policy and a note. Nothing more. Charley glanced at the note, read a line or two, then stopped.

"This seems to be personal," he said. "It's for Pat."

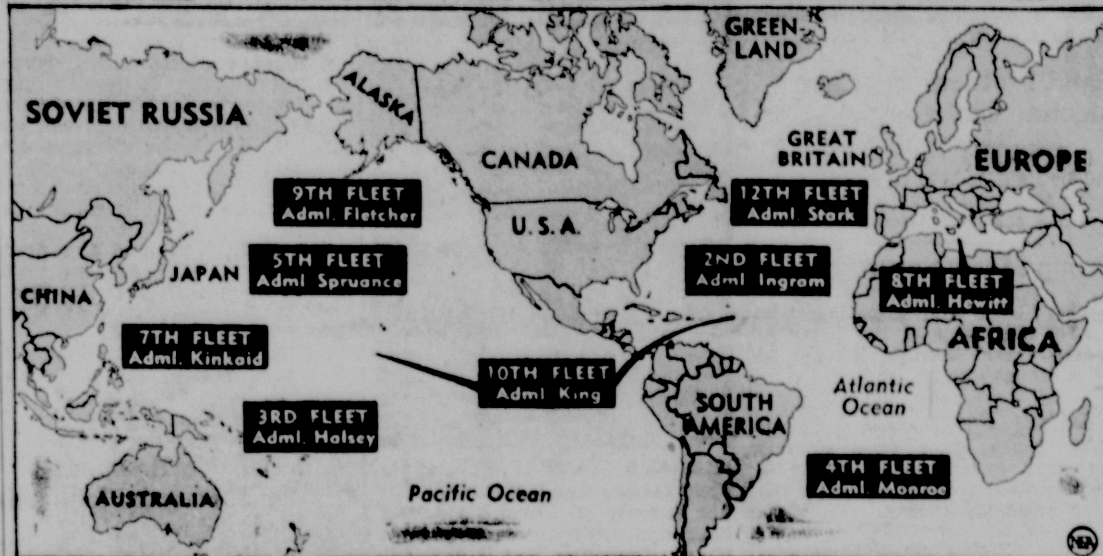

"Pat's asleep," I said. "You'd better read it all."

The letter was signed by Phineas Hudson—a strangely moving message to his daughter which he had addressed to himself for reasons that came clear in the note.

"Dear Pat,

So many times I've heard of people who have forgotten to say goodbye, and I've seen the heartache that this neglect has caused. The occasion seems to have arrived for me to take my leave of you. If I am wrong, I can intercept this letter myself and avoid feeling incredibly foolish and sentimental. If I am right—God bless you, child, and from the bottom of

AMERICAN NAVAL MIGHT SWEEPS SEVEN SEAS

How the United States Navy has grown from the grave days of Pearl Harbor, when what the Japs left of our fleet had to be divided between the sub-infested Atlantic and the Jap-controlled Pacific, is graphically shown above. In addition to formal fleets indicated, there are many task forces, made up in varying strength from units of the several fleets.

NEW SMOKELESS POWDER PROCESS ELIMINATES COAL

(By International News Service)

EAST ALTON, Ill.—Proving that "common sense" can be wrong, East Alton scientists have found a way to relieve the coal shortage and save large tonnages every month.

Common belief has it that hot water is best for washing, even laundering smokeless powder. When nitrocellulose, the base of smokeless powder, was first discovered, early English powder makers, afraid hot water would explode it, washed it in sacks suspended in cold mountain brooks to remove acid impurities.

It was considered daring when English powder makers boiled nitrocellulose in hot water. When even hot water failed to remove the impurities, Western Cartridge company developed a chemical method which purified nitrocellulose without washing.

Until recently, hot water—heated by great quantities of coal—was used in one of the final steps of this process to remove the glue-like colloid substance that surrounds the droplets of nitrocellulose and keeps them separated until they harden into spherical powder grains.

In their effort to conserve vital materials in ball powder production, Western experts made a scientific test of the "common sense" belief that hot water is better than cold water for washing. Their tests proved common sense was wrong. Putting their laboratory tests into full scale operation they were able to make many precious tons of coal available for other vital war and civilian needs.

Flashes Of Life

ARMISTICE REPORTED. THEN THERE WAS WAR.

FORT SHELDON, Ill.—Frankster soldiers here awakened a buddy in the middle of the night and showed a copy of the local newspaper under his nose. "Armistice Signed," a foot-high headline read, "Germany Surrenders." He was out of bed, half dressed and headed for a midnight celebration before his friends let him in on the joke. It was a 1918 newspaper.

SOCKS—PEORIA STLYE

PEORIA, Ill.—Some men in these parts are wearing socks that don't match. They adopted the unconventional practice when they wore out one sock in mated sets, and decided to put on the serviceable survivors. An attorney donned an out-of-harmony pair as an experiment. "Nobody," he reported, "noticed the difference."

BOOTHBLACKS CRAVE BUSMAN'S HOLIDAY

BUENOS AIRES—Buenos Aires bootblacks have organized for greater recognition, petitioning the government for minimum pay, severance pay, sick leave benefits and vacations with pay. A spokesman for the newly formed union declared: "We, too, would like to go to the seashore for a few days each summer, with some pesos in our pocket, and be able to have someone else shine our shoes."

THROUGH SOLOING

LONDON — Robert Irving of Winchester, pianoforte soloist with the London String Players before the war, now is flying a four engined Liberator bomber hunting U-boats in the Atlantic. His nickname: "The flying symphony conductor."

Most important fishery on the Atlantic coast is the methaden industry, centered in North Carolina, from which more than a billion fish are taken annually and processed for their oil, for animal feed and fertilizer.

Record Litter of 23 Pigs Calls For Feeding Help

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. — A feeding problem confronted swine husbandry experts at California Polytechnic college when a Duroc sow, Poly Kings, farrowed a record litter of 23 pigs.

How to distribute 12 lunch buckets among 23 offspring was solved by "having other nursing sows cooperate to feed some of the pigs."

The 23 pigs broke the previous Polytechnic record of 17 pigs in a litter.

CHILDREN NEED PLENTY OF VITAMINS

Growing children need the important vitamins and minerals contained in Enriched Bread because these elements stimulate appetite, convert food into energy, make good red blood, strong bones and teeth, and help to strengthen nerves.

During these days of food shortages and rationing it becomes increasingly difficult for mothers to provide well balanced meals. One way to see that the family has a goodly share of vitamins and minerals is to encourage every member to eat more Enriched Bread and use recipes that include the use of bread.

Housewives can be sure of securing the maximum in vitamins and minerals (as contained in bread) by always using Keystone Bread for it contains extra vitamins and minerals in accordance with the very highest standards of enrichment set by the United States Government.

Every home-maker should know that this extra enrichment in Keystone Bread is over 50% higher than the minimum requirements and that there is no other bread sold in this community containing this very high standard of enrichment. Mothers with growing children should encourage them to eat plenty of Keystone Bread because it helps to develop and strengthen their growing bodies. Toasted bread cut into cubes and served with milk, sugar, and raisins makes a very tasty breakfast cereal. It is a recognized fact that enriched bread with jam or jelly is the best food to give to the youngsters for an after school lunch. Sandwiches are especially good for children because they include two slices of bread as well as the filling, and most mothers encourage their children to eat several slices of bread at the dinner table. Bread goes well with all foods and when it's Keystone Bread, it greatly increases the vitamin and mineral supply so essential to good health.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

—by Hal Boyle—

TWELFTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS — Three kings look over the shoulder of General Omar Nelson Bradley, who has come a long way from a Central Missouri railroad center to direct the forward thrusting American armies in the battle of Germany, as he sits in his present headquarters.

They are plaster busts of the three last monarchs of Belgium, whose tiny but aggressively progressive country was liberated by troops fighting under this tall army group commander.

At 52 years of age, Bradley is in the curious position of being perhaps America's most proven field general—yet he is relegated to a job that ordinarily ties him to a desk far from the battlefield where he would prefer to be.

In Tunisia and in Sicily, as a group commander, Bradley demonstrated tactical talents not excelled by any subsequent combat leader. None who came after him has exceeded his masterful record—the "last roundup" in northern Tunisia, the taking of Hill 609, the cracking of the German line at Troina in Sicily, the long, swift, hard march to Messina and the Normandy conquest.

Diplomatic "Country Doctor"

But in the long term strategy of international war there are jobs even more important than those of corps or army commanders—and there are few men who have the talent to fill them. Fine group and overall commanders like Bradley and Montgomery are few indeed. They must plan strategic objectives weeks and months ahead and get able but temperamental subordinates to pull together.

Bradley, who looks and acts like a kindly country doctor, is stern enough to drive and direct troops to victory in the white heat and agony of battle and he is diplomatic enough to channel the high ability of high-strung army commanders to a common purpose and mutual goal. He is the nearest thing to Abraham Lincoln uniform the American army has produced.

He has goodness, good will, tact and shining simplicity. With that farm boy simplicity goes shrewdness and judgment.

Bradley is the least changed man by success I have ever met. He leads the same quiet, semi-Spartan existence he did when he first went into the field in Tunisia.

Lavish Quarters

Temporarily his surroundings border on the magnificent. His home-

ton's bold stroke and praised him highly. He stayed up until almost midnight that night talking over old times and discussing the windup campaign in Germany.

His mess sergeant had obtained some fresh oysters for the general's chow to celebrate the crossing of the Rhine by a second Twelfth army group and everybody enjoyed them but Bradley, who passed them by.

"The general is allergic to shellfish," one of his aides explained.

"Why am I Still Waiting, WHEN MY NEIGHBOR JUST GOT A TELEPHONE?"

WE KNOW just how you felt when the new neighbor across the street got a telephone, after you had been waiting patiently for many months for home telephone service.

You can't be blamed for feeling put out, so we want you to know why your neighbor might have obtained telephone service. It might have been:

1. Your neighbor may have a key position with a vital war industry—or with some essential civilian activity affecting public welfare, health or safety—which requires that he be available at all hours. This would give him precedence over other applicants.
2. He may have applied for service many months before he actually moved, and before your application was made.
3. He may have moved into your neighborhood from a home in the same community, or one nearby, where he had telephone service. Transfers of the service of present subscribers are made within the same general area whenever possible.

In every instance we shall be glad to check for you just why your neighbor got service ahead of you.

Telephone people are following the procedures which were set up by the War Production Board, when shortages in telephone facilities began to appear in 1942 and are installing service in its proper turn under the fair and necessary rules.

We know what telephone service means to every home and regret exceedingly the inconvenience caused to those on our waiting lists. It also grieves us that we can't tell you how soon you will be served. We can assure you that your order will not be forgotten and will be filled in its proper turn, even though that might be some time after final victory.

Baruch, Flynn Hold London Conferences

LONDON, April 3.—Two of President Roosevelt's top-ranking advisers were in the same London hotel today, giving rise to speculation whether their presence was keyed to the expectation of Germany's collapse.

They were Presidential Adviser Bernard Baruch and Edward J. Flynn, former Democratic national committee chairman. Presumably they would have the opportunity now to discuss Flynn's trip to Yalta, Moscow, the Vatican and Paris, as well as Baruch's weekend conferences with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The London Daily Mail said that if the European war ended in the next two weeks it might necessitate immediate meetings of the Big Three, replacing, or at least overshadowing, the San Francisco conference scheduled to open April 25.

Some British newspapers were urging that the conference be postponed because problems of an imminent German collapse might interfere with attendance.

OKINAWA

Leif Erickson suggested the main body of Japanese troops could make "a bitter saturation defensive stand" on a two-mile-wide isthmus 10 miles or so north of the American beachhead.

There was no sign of strong organized opposition as the Tenth army line advanced several thousand yards yesterday. Many units merely walked ahead.

Only in the center did the Yanks encounter enemy activity worth mentioning in Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique today. The Japanese were believed holed up in caves there.

On the north end of the beachhead, which measures 11 miles, Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine Amphibious corps cut off Zampa cape, which juts into the east China sea, as they moved north and east.

The 1400-ship American armada off Okinawa was attacked by Japanese planes invasion night and five men were shot down.

Japan's Domei news agency claimed that 146 U. S. ships had been sunk or damaged by air and surface units "so far" in the Okinawa campaign.

The broadcast was totally without confirmation.

ARMY AIR FORCES GUIDE FLIGHT DIET OF BOMBER CREWS

(By United Press)
SMOKY HILL ARMY AIR BASE, SAILINA, Kan.—An inflight feeding program that is as new as the B-29 itself has been established within the Second Air Force, Smoky Hill public relations officers said recently.

Well-trained Army cooks who are used in planning balanced, easy-to-digest meals, prepare the inflight meals for crews enroute to and from distant targets.

Cooks first were trained in the Flight Feeding school, at Smoky Hill. After completing their course in the Flight Feeding school, the cooks became experts in the fundamentals of nutrition, particularly as applied to high-altitude operation. In planning their meals, cooks were taught to avoid food high in fat content or of a gaseous nature.

Food Is Ammunition
Aircrew members can be reasonably certain they will not find pork, fish, cabbage or beans in their hot-plate trays, officers said.

The prime factor stressed to all cooks is that food is ammunition—that what a man eats has a profound effect on his efficiency. Officers said the cooks realize that to a combat crew, food takes on even greater importance. Not only the success of a mission, but also the safety of the crew, depends on the ability of each man to do his job at top efficiency over relatively long periods of stress.

Public relations men said a unit called the Food Warmer has been developed to provide for inflight feeding. It is an insulated cabinet equipped with heating elements to permit operation either on the ground or in flight. Temperature in the heated compartment is maintained at 160 degrees by use of a built-in thermostat.

Sectional Trays
Six sectional trays are included in the warmer, with 12 beverage containers and a top drawer for condiments, bread and eating utensils. The Food Warmer carries enough food for six men, and one of the heaters will supply the normal medium bomber crew, while two are required for the heavy bomber and B-29 crews.

The warmers are placed aboard the plane shortly before the take-off time and are electrically heated during the course of the flight.

The entire program of inflight feeding, which first started on an experimental basis, proved so successful that new schools will be opened throughout the Second Air Force stations in this country.

U. S. Mule In Burma Falls 180 Feet, Resumes March

(By United Press)
HEADQUARTERS ALLIED LAND FORCES, SOUTHEAST ASIA—Mules are once again proving themselves the toughest and most dependable means of transport for a long-range jungle penetration group.

In the campaign of "Merrill's Marauders" the nimble-footed Missouri hybrids outworked and outlasted the pack horses. Now the Mars Task Force, fighting deep in the jungle, after cutting the old Burma road above Lashio, comes up with another story that proves a mule is just naturally a four-footed infantryman.

"Number 34," $2,000 worth of mule loaded with 250 pounds of equipment, rolled head-over-heels 150 feet into a ravine when a narrow native trail collapsed under its weight. Sgt. Dave Moore, Jackboro, Tex., Staff Sgt. Amos Martin, Paris, Tex., and T-5 Poly Poling of Bartlett, O., went to the rescue, expecting to find a dead mule. They found "Number 34" alive, but hooked by his harness to two trees.

They cut the harness and the mule fell another 30 feet into a shallow creek and landed on its back. The mule rolled over, stood up and began eating bamboo leaves. Three more mules fell into the creek from the same trail. One was killed, the other two uninjured.

The Mars men went to work, hauled out steps on a gradual incline about a half-mile up to the trail. By late afternoon the mules were on the march again.

NATION'S LIQUOR CONSUMPTION HIGH

Total Increase Sixteen Million Gallons; New York Highest Area

(By United Press)
CHICAGO—Increased consumption of hard liquor in Illinois in 1944 figured to 1.45 gallons per person.

That was the situation indicated in a report submitted by Max Lord, chief of the field division of the Illinois Liquor Control commission. Lord reported to Charles J. Fleck, commission chairman, that Illinois consumed 11,533,690 gallons, compared with 9,104,000 gallons during 1943, or a 26.7 per cent increase. New York led the nation in apparent consumption with 17,216,000 gallons and California was second with 16,467,000 gallons. Total for the nation was 111,000,000 gallons, as against 95,000,000 in 1943.

Production of domestic distilled spirits in the nation in December was 2,316,500 gallons, mostly brandy. In Illinois it was less than 25,000 gallons in the same period. Kentucky led in stocks on hand after tax-paid withdrawals at the end of 1944 with over 150,000,000 gallons; Indiana had 45,000,000; Illinois approximately the same amount, and Pennsylvania had 35,000,000. But Lord added that the figures were those before evaporation, leakage and seepage.

In the United States total federal collection from liquor gallonage taxes for December, 1944, was $201,000,000, more than $80,000,000 above that of the preceding period. It included $125,000,000 on distilled spirits; $47,000,000 on beer; $17,000,000 for imports; $4,500,000, wines;

Nazis Arrest Ace

Field Marshal Baron Wolfram von Richthofen, above, cousin of Germany's famous World War I ace, has, according to the clandestine Atlantic radio, been arrested with Field Marshal Hugh Sperrle for failure of the German air force to meet Allied raids. Richthofen gained fame in the Spanish war and in early action across British Channel.

$4,500,000, floor tax; $3,000,000 for rectification tax, and $1,000,000 for container stamps.

Beer tax collections showed only a slight increase last year, the figures being $7,144,000 over $6,014,000. The number of wine drinkers increased with the 1944 gallonage being 6,543,000 and taxes being $2,083,000. Previously the taxes were $1,842,000 and the gallonage 5,818,000.

'Atrocity' Stories In German Papers Spur Nazi Hate Program

By THOMAS HAWKINS
BERN, Switzerland, April 3—Nazi propagandists are resorting to widespread use of flimsy stories of Allied atrocities to spur military and civilian resistance in the waning hours of the third Reich.

The readers of German newspapers find this new hate campaign splurged across the front pages. The real war news has gone to the inside pages except for an occasional guarded army communiqué in the lower left hand corner of page one.

Adolf Hitler's own Volkischer Beobachter keyed the campaign with headlines such as these: "Brutal hate regiment in Cologne," "Traitor fallen before justice," "American-purchased Aachen burgomaster shot by German fighters for freedom," "Only hate holds them together, inner differences of Allies unsolvable."

A story with a Stuttgart dateline declared Negro soldiers were forcing women in Cologne to clean latrines, asserted American soldiers beat up a German woman who refused to pose for a picture and left her to die, and recounted that an American soldier took a German woman who gave him a wrist watch in payment for milk for her baby.

The emergence of the "Werewolves" and other guerrilla bands which the Germans say are operating behind Allied lines were seen as part of this projected hate movement.

Boss Rickey Indignant Over 1-A Classification Of Buker

Player Placed In 1-A As He Leaves Job To Play Ball

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, April 3.—President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers is indignant because 26-year-old Cyril Buker, 4-F right-handed pitcher being groomed for a starring berth, yesterday received word from his Sturgeon Bay, Wis., draft board that he has been reclassified 1-A because of asserted job-jumping.

Several weeks ago a War Manpower Commission ruling freed ball players from their essential jobs so they might return to their principal occupation. Rickey said yesterday that "if this isn't a violation of that ruling, I don't know what is."

Buker was athletic director at Eau Claire, Wis., high school last winter but obtained his employers' permission to return to baseball after the WMC's ruling.

Other training camp items:
Boston Braves — Manager Bob

Coleman has started worrying about pitching. Al Javery and Nate Andrews have ailing arms and Jim Tobin still is a holdout.

Boston Red Sox—Rex Cecil and Mike Ryba were expected to start against Yankees in exhibition game today.

Chicago Cubs—Claude Passeau, expected to pitch opening game of season, was sent to Chicago for treatment for a sore arm.

Chicago White Sox — Outfielder Oris Hockett took a day off because of a pinched nerve in his leg.

Pittsburgh Pirates — Outfielder Lloyd Waner, back with first major league club he played with, said he felt like a rookie after first workout.

Sport Chatter

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, April 3.—Raised eyebrows dept. — News from Cornell's spring football drills reveals Gil Bouley is due to fill a tackle slot on the Big Red team next fall. Gil's the 235-pounder who was a sophomore sensation at Boston college three years ago, since then he has been in and out of the Army and chose to follow his favorite coach, Ed McKeever, to Cornell. More than one college athlete leader is afraid such transfers will become a habit. One school of thought is that ex-service men should be allowed to compete only for the colleges where they started.

TWO SIDES

Syracuse's Lew Andreas, who has devoted considerable thought to the subject, says this about post-war transfers: "I believe it will be for the best interests of intercollegiate sport to apply the transfer rule strictly. This will work hardship in some cases and perhaps these cases could be referred to a special board representing such groups as the Eastern Intercollegiate Football association. Unless the transfer rule is applied strictly, I believe we shall witness the revival of proselytizing in the history of sports. There will be a delegation of bow-hungry directors on every dock to meet every returning ship." Oklahoma's Dale Arbuckle believes any service man sent back to school by the G. I. Bill of Rights should immediately become eligible for athletics. He says it's not their fault they weren't eligible sooner. But whether he should return to his old school or another is a new problem and Arbuckle figures a national eligibility committee should be set up to handle such things.

ONE-SECOND SPORTS PAGE

Short Shift Bill Vecek, the Milwaukee Brewers' proxy, has undergone three operations on his leg, which became infected while he was serving with the Marines in the Pacific. The infection still hasn't been cured.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., April 3.—Outfielder Jeff Heath, who is expected to join the Cleveland Indians at Indianapolis Sunday, will play right field, says Manager Lou Boudreau. The Tribe boss announced yesterday that Pat Seery had the left field post as long as he continued to hit better than 500.

FIGHT RESULTS

CHICAGO—Collins Brown, 161, Chicago knocked out Corp. Buddy Rose, 162, Cincinnati, 6. Nick Stenson, 137 1/2, Cincinnati, outpointed Melvin Bartholomew, 137, New Orleans, 5.

Boss Rickey Indignant Over 1-A Classification Of Buker

Player Placed In 1-A As He Leaves Job To Play Ball

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 3.—President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers is indignant because 26-year-old Cyril Buker, 4-F right-handed pitcher being groomed for a starring berth, yesterday received word from his Sturgeon Bay, Wis., draft board that he has been reclassified 1-A because of asserted job-jumping.

Several weeks ago a War Manpower Commission ruling freed ball players from their essential jobs so they might return to their principal occupation. Rickey said yesterday that "if this isn't a violation of that ruling, I don't know what is."

Buker was athletic director at Eau Claire, Wis., high school last winter but obtained his employers' permission to return to baseball after the WMC's ruling.

Other training camp items:
Boston Braves — Manager Bob

Coleman has started worrying about pitching. Al Javery and Nate Andrews have ailing arms and Jim Tobin still is a holdout.

Boston Red Sox—Rex Cecil and Mike Ryba were expected to start against Yankees in exhibition game today.

Philadelphia A's — Outfielder Charley Metro and Harold Peck were notified their 4-F classification remained unchanged after a re-examination.

Philadelphia Phils—Vince DiMaggio, outfielder acquired in trade with Pittsburgh, said he would join club next week.

Chicago Cubs—Claude Passeau, expected to pitch opening game of season, was sent to Chicago for treatment for a sore arm.

Chicago White Sox — Outfielder Oris Hockett took a day off because of a pinched nerve in his leg.

Pittsburgh Pirates — Outfielder Lloyd Waner, back with first major league club he played with, said he felt like a rookie after first workout.

Cleveland — Indians — Manager Lou Boudreau announced Allie Reynolds would pitch opening game of season against White Sox.

St. Louis Cardinals — Manager Billy Southworth said he planned to use Rookie Shortstop Red Schoendienst as outfielder because of his hitting power.

St. Louis Browns—Rookie Pitcher Clyde Humphrey out of the game for two years, reported at Cape Girardeau camp.

New York Yankees—Won Savage's three-run homer gave Yanks 5-2 triumph over Giants.

ROSS ACT REVIVAL IS SEEN IN HOUSE

Emergency Clause To Legalize 45-Hour Women's Work Week

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 3.—Sufficient support to reenact the Ross act immediately had apparently been mustered today and the proponents said they were confident of success.
Since expiration of the act Saturday night war plants have been without legal authority to work women more than 45 hours a week. The legislation removed the ceiling.
A test vote last night indicated 93 votes were available in the house of representatives for an emergency clause needed to put the act into effect at once.
Ninety-one votes are needed.
The House was expected to vote today to reconsider its rejection of the emergency clause, which produced a deadlock over the bill last Wednesday.
A motion to reconsider was made by Rep. Frank Pokorny (D) of Cleveland.

Earlier, Gov. Frank J. Lausche had been busy lining up support of the emergency clause among his Democratic party members, who had gone along with labor organization representatives and opposed the provision.
"I am quite confident," the governor said, "that the emergency will be voted into the bill."

Over in the Senate, the elections committee heard former Senator John Taylor suggest that something be done to shorten the tenure of "political bosses."

Taylor, commented on a bill before the committee to authorize political parties to hold state, county and district pre-primary conventions for endorsing candidates.

Taylor, a Democrat, also suggested that convention delegates be prohibited from accepting patronage during the terms of the candidates they endorse; that an office seeker be "qualified" as a candidate if he received a third of the convention votes from a third of the counties; and that the legislature nominate candidates for the U. S. Senate if

Just For the Record

PORT WAYNE, Ind.—Sergeant Morris Slidinger of the Troop Carrier command at Baer field decided to play right along with his draft board which wrote him a letter telling that he was in class 4-A because of old age. He wrote the board and asked them to reclassify him to 1A so he could join the army.

It did not approve of the convention candidates.

The Senate received a bill proposing the creation of an Ohio aviation board "to encourage and assist transportation by aircraft." The author is Senator Fred Adams (R) of Bowling Green.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

who have cooperated with the Allies.

So in designating the underground force as Werewolves the Nazi leaders are merely giving a nasty name to something which already exists. Mythology tells us that Werewolves are human beings who are able to change themselves into wolves and in that animal form practice cannibalism. Such a title fits the sadistic Prussian mentality well, and quite likely will impel daring and brutal deeds.

We have a concrete example of the effect of the Nazi "fight to a finish" propaganda in the siege of the fortified city of Aschaffenburg by the American Seventh army. There teen-age girls and old men and women are fighting beside the German troops.

Four nations border the Black Sea—Russia, Turkey, Romania and Bulgaria.

PATTON DRIVES

At the southern end of the front, Gen. Jacob L. Devers' Sixth army group pressed to within 32 miles of Stuttgart (460,000) and within six miles of the important Wuertemberg traffic center of Heilbrunn. The 42nd division was mopping up the area of Wuerzburg on the approaches to the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg, with 44 miles of Seventh army columns. The Tenth Armored division was meeting stiff resistance toward Nuernberg.

Fashion Double Trap

The French First army had outflanked the Baden capital of Karlsruhe (189,095) and widened its cross-rhine front to 25 miles or more.

Montgomery was fashioning a double trap for the Germans tarrying in Holland, by sending columns probing toward both the Zuider Zee and the North sea.

The Canadian First army, with the Fourth Armored and Third infantry divisions in action, was operating northeast of the lower Rhine and nearest the great Dutch water mass. By reaching the Zuider Zee, it would cut off German troops in such cities as Amsterdam, Rotterdam, the Hague, Utrecht, Haarlem and Arnhem to the south and west.

The Germans were attempting to pull out of parts of Holland and northwest Germany.

Total Eclipse of Sun

July 9, Say Almanacs

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Fort Worth amateur astronomers have thumbed out of their almanacs the information that a total eclipse of the sun will be visible in parts of the United States on July 9 for the first time since 1932.

The almanacs say the country will have to wait until 1954 for another one like it. The 1945 total eclipse will be visible over much of the world.

The narrow path of the total eclipse will start about sunrise in Idaho and move eastward across Montana, Canada, Hudson's Bay, the North Atlantic, Scandinavia, Russia, and end in Turkestan about sunset.

SCHOOL BOARD

State Examiner F. L. Ormes, who is now checking city books.

The board, which has been purchasing school coal on the open market because of a lack of bids last year, approved a shift of purchases from the Callahan Coal Co. mine, south of Salem, to a mine north of Salem operated by the same concern.

A slight change in price was approved in the lump, egg and other coal purchased regularly.

Named Library Trustee

Two loads of slag to be used on the east playground at McKinley school were authorized, and the Salem Junior Music club was granted free use of the gym for a benefit dance. The dance was held several weeks ago to raise money to send participants from the High school to a music contest in Columbus.

Mrs. F. J. Emery was re-appointed trustee of the Salem City school district library for a seven-year term. Her term had expired on March 31.

Supt. E. S. Kerr outlined the program planned by the schools in the Seventh War Loan drive, in which students will obtain pledges from their respective homes and neighborhoods and return them to drive workers for collection.

During the recent Red Cross drive, Kerr said, the schools totaled a contribution of $771.37. This figure included the collection at St. Paul school.

ROSS ACT REVIVAL IS SEEN IN HOUSE

Emergency Clause To Legalize 45-Hour Women's Work Week

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 3.—Sufficient support to reenact the Ross act immediately had apparently been mustered today and the proponents said they were confident of success.

Since expiration of the act Saturday night war plants have been without legal authority to work women more than 45 hours a week. The legislation removed the ceiling. A test vote last night indicated 93 votes were available in the house of representatives for an emergency clause needed to put the act into effect at once. Ninety-one votes are needed.

The House was expected to vote today to reconsider its rejection of the emergency clause, which produced a deadlock over the bill last Wednesday.

A motion to reconsider was made by Rep. Frank Pokorny (D) of Cleveland.

Earlier, Gov. Frank J. Lausche had been busy lining up support of the emergency clause among his Democratic party members, who had gone along with labor organization representatives and opposed the provision.

"I am quite confident," the governor said, "that the emergency will be voted into the bill."

Over in the Senate, the elections committee heard former Senator John Taylor suggest that something be done to shorten the tenure of "political bosses."

Taylor, commented on a bill before the committee to authorize political parties to hold state, county and district, pre-primary conventions for endorsing candidates.

Taylor, a Democrat, also suggested that convention delegates be prohibited from accepting patronage during the terms of the candidates they endorse; that an office seeker be "qualified" as a candidate if he received a third of the convention votes from a third of the counties; and that the legislature nominate candidates for the U. S. Senate if

It did not approve of the convention candidates.

The Senate received a bill proposing the creation of an Ohio aviation board "to encourage and assist transportation by aircraft." The author is Senator Fred Adams (R) of Bowling Green.

who have cooperated with the Allies.

So in designating the underground force as Werewolves the Nazi leaders are merely giving a nasty name to something which already exists. Mythology tells us that Werewolves are human beings who are able to change themselves into wolves and in that animal form practice cannibalism. Such a title fits the sadistic Prussian mentality well, and quite likely will impel daring and brutal deeds.

We have a concrete example of the effect of the Nazi "fight to a finish" propaganda in the siege of the fortified city of Aschaffenburg by the American Seventh army. There teen-age girls and old men and women are fighting beside the German troops.

Four nations border the Black Sea—Russia, Turkey, Rumania and Bulgaria.

PATTON DRIVES

At the southern end of the front, Gen. Jacob L. Devers' Sixth army group, pressed to within 32 miles of Stuttgart (400,000) and within six miles of the important Wuerttemberg traffic center of Heilbrun. The 42nd division was mopping up the area of Wuertzburg on the approaches to the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg, with 44 miles of Seventh army columns. The Tenth Armored division was meeting stiff resistance toward Nuernberg.

Fashion Double Trap

The French First army had outflanked the Baden capital of Karlsruhe (189,095) and widened its cross-Rhine front to 25 miles or more.

Montgomery was fashioning a double trap for the Germans tarrying in Holland, by sending columns probing toward both the Zuider Zee and the North sea.

The Canadian First army, with the Fourth Armored and Third infantry divisions in action, was operating northeast of the lower Rhine and nearest the great Dutch water mass. By reaching the Zuider Zee, it would cut off German troops in such cities as Amsterdam, Rotterdam, the Hague, Utrecht, Haarlem and Arnhem to the south and west.

The Germans were attempting to pull out of parts of Holland and northwest Germany.

Total Eclipse of Sun

July 9, Say Almanacs

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Fort Worth amateur astronomers have thumbed out of their almanacs the information that a total eclipse of the sun will be visible in parts of the United States on July 9 for the first time since 1932.

The almanacs say the country will have to wait until 1954 for another one like it. The 1945 total eclipse will be visible over much of the world.

The narrow path of the total eclipse will start about sunrise in Idaho and move eastward across Montana, Canada, Hudson's Bay, the North Atlantic, Scandinavia, Russia, and end in Turkestan about sunset.
